The epidemic in Baker county is abating.

The Salem firemen are to have a new and stylish hat.

The crickets are doing great damage to vegetables in Wasco county.

Oats sell at 10 cents a bushel at Pegone City, wheat at 60 cents.

Judge Mosher has resigned the tripod as he has a better thing on the "bench."

M. G. Upton, of San Francisco, has been appointed a Commissioner of Deeds for Oregon.

Congressman J. G. Wilson, from Oregon, is again reported quite ill with rheumatism at Georgetown, D. C.

The Odd Fellows' Lodge at Junctionville elected Messrs. Garden and Cunningham Delegates to the Grand Lodge.

The Oneatta had not left Yaquina Bay last week. She probably started for Portland some time this week.

Messrs. N. P. Briggs and J. W. Williams, of Corvallis, have been elected Delegates to the Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F.

A mail route is to be established, running from Oakland through Cole's valley and French Settlement, to Looking Glass.

James H. Koontz and Robert Stanfield, of Umatilla, were duly elected Representatives to the Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F.

Mr. James Elgin, who lives about nine miles from Salem, discovered a bed of iron ore of a rich quality, and brought in several fine specimens.

On Tuesday evening last Spencer Butte Lodge, I. O. O. F., elected P. G. E. L. Bristow and A. Noltner representatives to the Grand Lodge, which meets at the Dalles, May 20th.

Judge Mosher, recently appointed to the bench in the 2d Judicial District will hold a term of court at Roseburg beginning this Monday morning.

Several wool growers have invited all who are interested in that business in Douglas county to meet at Roseburg next Saturday, 17th inst., to consult as to the best method of disposing of the present wool crop, etc.

The Roseburg Plaindealer says: "Orders have been received for forty more men for the Modoc service, to protect settlers in this State. They are to form a company in connection with those already gone, and elect their own officers."

The regular annual session of the Mute School at Salem, will close next week. The State Board of Education will examine the pupils in their studies on Tuesday afternoon, at the school-room, and the closing exhibition will be given Tuesday evening, at the Congregational Church.

A letter from Union, Union county says "there is no particular news except that about one hundred citizens of Union and Cove have organized and hold themselves ready if any Indian hostilities should arise in Eastern Oregon. A. C. Smith is Captain, J. W. Mobley 1st Lieutenant and A. R. Robinson 2d do.

A man by the name of Basket, from Polk county, returned to the stage station beyond the Deschutes bridge, one day last week, and reported having been chased by the Indians. About half an hour after his arrival the two Indians made their appearance, who, upon examination, turned out to be two old squaws.

Mr. J. M. Arlington, who has made a preliminary survey of the Roseburg and Port Orford Railroad, says that the route is the best natural route for a road in Oregon. The steepest grade is 70 feet to the mile; distance, a little less than 105 miles; route: through Camas valley, down the middle fork of the Coquille, leaving that river near Beaver Creek.

A last Saturday's dispatch from Eugene City says: "Two young men, named R. Ware and John Brown, both of this place, engaged in a quarrel last night, about 7 o'clock, in Saxon's saloon, which resulted in the stabbing of Brown by Ware. Brown was cut in the left side, and is supposed to be mortally wounded. Ware was taken to jail, and will have an examination at one o'clock this afternoon.

Sunday's Statesman says: "There was received yesterday at the Salem mills about 2,000 bushels of wheat. As the mill is now running on the Chico contract, the proprietors are compelled to employ all the means of transportation that is available. There were twelve car loads received at the depot yesterday; eight hundred sacks by boat and five hundred by wagons. The company are now paying 75 cents for wheat."

The Corvallis Warehouse Company have filed articles of incorporation. The incorporators are H. C. Lewis, G. G. Newton, E. Hartless, C. E. Moor, W. H. Elliott and N. P. Newton. The purpose and object of the corporation is to purchase, hire or build a wharf and warehouse or warehouses, and possess the same, store and for ward grain and other freights. The amount of the capital stock of the corporation shall be three thousand dollars, gold coin.

Capt. John Smith, of the Warm Springs Reservation, writes to an exchange: "The Indians of this reservation are perfectly quiet and attentive to their own pursuits. They are much grieved that any rumors should obtain belief as to their disaffection. They say, is it not enough that we send our fathers, brothers and relatives to fight for the whites? What other thing can we do to make the whites believe in us, if offering our lives in their behalf is not enough?"

The Roseburg Plaindealer says: "The lead of chrome ore of Mr. Masters and others, on Cow creek, has been leased for a term of years by a party of capitalists, who intend to reduce the ore at the mine. One of the Company will shortly visit the Eastern States for the purpose of procuring the most improved machinery. We hope the venture may prove remunerative, as the supply of ore is inexhaustible, and will add much to the resources of this county."

On the 3d of last March the house of Mr. R. C. Clark, near Monroe, was entered by means of keys, and some money, a gold ring, and other articles were stolen. Suspicion rested upon two young men named Emery Jones and John Wood. Sheriff Palmer was informed of the circumstances, and on last Tuesday arrested them and reclaimed some of the stolen articles. They were taken to Corvallis, waived an examination, and in default of $200 bonds each, were committed to jail.

The town of Cottage Grove, Lane county, is holding its own, despite the fact that the railroad has left it out in the cold. Messrs. D. C. Underwood & Co., and Aaron Lurch have large stocks of goods, which they are selling at reasonable rates. The Good Templars have a flourishing Lodge, numbering about eighty. They are preparing to build a hall, which they propose to have ready in a short time. The building is to be 18x30, and two stories, the lower story to be used as a place of public meetings, and the upper part for a Good Templar's Hall.

A correspondent who is in a position to know, writing from the Siletz Indian Agency, under date of May 8th says: "I must say that I never saw a people more anxious to better their condition than these Indians. They are putting in several hundred acres of wheat, oats, potatoes and other crops, and are willing to do anything that we tell them to do. I am surprised to learn of the foolish excitement on the outside regarding this people. On my way to this place a short time since I was informed that they were on the eve of a revolt, etc, but I found it to be an utterly groundless rumor.

EASTERN STATES.

Interesting from Hall's Arctic Expedition—Capt. Hall Dead

New York, May 10.—A dispatch from St. Johns, New Brunswick, May 9th, says the steamer Tigress had come from the seal fishery at the port of St. John's this morning, bringing news that the steamer Tigress had come on board nineteen survivors of Hall's expedition. Following are the names of the rescued: H. C. Tyson, Assistant Navigator, Frederick K. Meyer, Meteorologist; John Herron, Steward; W. G. Kruger, Fred Janika, John Hindmann, Fred. Autog, Gustavus T. Lindist, Peter Johnson and William Jackson, Esquimaux Joe, interpreter, Hannah and child, Esquimaux. Hans Christian, of Kane's expedition, with wife and four children. This party, which had been landed from the Polaris, were driven on the ice floe which burst her moorings on the 15th of October, 1872, in latitude 62 deg. 35 min. When last seen, the Polaris was under steam and canvas making for a harbor on the east side of Northumberland Island. She had no more room left. The Polaris was in command of Capt Buddington, who had thirteen of the crew along with him and a plentiful stock of provisions. Her bow is somewhat damaged, and it is the opinion of the survivors that they will be unable to get clear until July. Even then, if the ship is unseaworthy, they would have to make new boats to escape. On the 8th of October, 1871, in latitude 81 deg. 38 min., longitude 71 deg. 44 min., Captain Hall died of apoplexy, and was buried on shore. They erected a wooden cross to mark his grave. He had recently returned from a northern sledge expedition, in which he had attained a latitude of 82 deg. 5 min. He seemed in his usual health, and had called the crew into the cabin to encourage them with hopes of future rewards, and stimulate them to renewed exertion, when he was suddenly stricken down and expired. In September, 1871, the Polaris entered winter quarters, and left August 12, 1872. The ice was very heavy, and set in a southern direction. She was forced south, and so continued drifting till Captain Tyson and party were driven from her. The sledge party crossed Kane's Polar sea which is now pronounced to be a straight channel under which there was an appearance of open water to the north. The rescued party suffered very much during their dreary drift from hunger and cold. For the last two months they ate raw seal and polar bear, as they could get it. When met by the Tigress they showed evident signs of great suffering, but during the nine days that they have been on board they have improved vastly, and are now in fair health. The party is in charge of the United States Consul, and will arrive at St. Johns on Monday.

A dispatch from Washington says the news of the disaster to the Polaris affected the President deeply, as he had hoped the enterprise of the Government in this direction would redound to the national honor.

Troops for the Modoc Service

St. Louis, May 10.—Ten companies of the Fourth U. S. Infantry, about 500 strong, under command of Col Flint, arrived last night from Little Rock, and left by the Missouri and Pacific Railroad for Omaha. Col Flint is ordered to report to Gen. Ord, at Omaha, but it is supposed his command is destined for the Modoc country.

The New Orleans Troubles.

New Iberia, La., May 10.—Fifty Metropolitan cavalry, under Cooney, arrived last night and left this morning for St. Martinsville. They report having had no difficulty on their way. Two hundred U. S. troops arrived here to-day, and proceed to St. Martinville by the steamer Iberia. It was reported here this morning that reinforcements were coming to Colonel De Blanc from St. Landry. Col. De Blanc has evidently intended from the first to maintain a resistance to Kellogg's government, and did not desire the aid of the U. S. troops. So far, fair is virtually over, with the exception of what action may be taken by the United States troops and Marshal.

Duel at Richmond—Both Parties Wounded.

Exciting Scene in a Murder Trial.

Baltimore, May 9.—On the night of January 2d, Mrs. Mary Ann Lampley, an aged lady, was murdered in this city, and her house robbed of several hundred dollars during the absence of her husband. Some time afterward, Joshua Nicholson, who married a granddaughter of Mrs. Lampley, and Thomas Whallin, alias Hallahan, were arrested, charged with the murder and indicted during the trial, Deputy Marshal Frey, and Chief Detective Frey, of this city, testified relative to the confession of murder made by the prisoners. The State Attorney was making his closing argument, when Hallahan sprang around the prisoners' box, and rushing at Frey, struck him violently over the head with a heavy piece of iron, wrapped in a stocking. King Nicholson also sprang out of the box and rushed toward Frey, when a melee ensued. Detectives Porter and Schafer rushed to the rescue of Marshal Frey, to protect him and secure the two criminals. Hallahan was struck on the head and badly cut—blood streaming over his face. Marshal Frey, although badly wounded, helped in subduing them and they were soon overcome and hand cuffed. After the excitement had subsided, the trial of the case was proceeded with and given to the jury at 9 o'clock, who soon returned with a verdict of murder in the first degree.

Mexican Border Troubles

Brownsville, May 9.—Yesterday a gang of about 20 men, armed, without legal writs, drove a lot of stolen cattle across the Rio Grande into Mexico, fifteen miles below this city. The cavalry started in pursuit, reaching the crossing one hour after the last of the cattle had crossed.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

From London.

London, May 9.—It is reported that the Spanish Minister to Great Britain has made a demand on Earl Granville for the prosecution of the London Carlist Committee, which is collecting funds to aid Don Carlos.

A dispatch from Lisbon says a number of Carlists took passage on the steamer which sailed to day.

Panic in Vienna.

Vienna May 6.—There was a wild panic on the Bourse to day, caused by the failure of a leading firm, which throws a large amount of stock on the market. So great was the excitement, that business became impossible. Speculators have petitioned the Government to order a suspension of transactions for a week, and adopt measures of relief. During the night of the panic, Rothschild and Schey were publicly insulted.

The number of visitors to the Exposition since the opening, has been from twelve to sixteen thousand.

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco.

San Francisco, May 10.—The lessees of Platt's Hall filed an answer to the complaint of Laura D. Fair, in which she claims damages for closing the hall on the occasion of her proposed lecture on "Wolves among the Fold." Defendants say a man called on the manager and requested that a room in the building be secured for the hall for a lecture. They agreed to let the hall for $50. They subsequently ascertained that Mrs. Fair was the party, and they refused as it might occur. The case will be tried to-day before Judge Ferral.

James Gannon, formerly detective officer, last night assaulted Henry Geddes, editor of the Post, by striking him in the face with a pistol. Bystanders disarmed Gannon. A warrant was issued for his arrest, and a charge of assault with intent to commit bodily injury preferred. Before examination was had the policy of the Post in reference to Jim Crowly's report. He gave bail in the sum of $5,000.

The rumor that Gov. Booth had pardoned the boy Sampson, who pleaded guilty to killing Wilson, is pronounced incorrect. In communication to the District Attorney, Murphy Gov. Booth says the condition of the boy Sampson's pardon and attainment of the full privileges of citizenship must depend on his future good conduct.

John McNamara, convicted of manslaughter for killing Henry Webb, was sentenced to one year in the State Prison.

James Cauthorn, who lives on the St. Clair place, near Philomath, met with a severe accident on Tuesday last. He was lifting a barrow, when he let it fall upon his hand, one of the teeth tearing a fearful gash.

What "Army Circles" Know About the Modocs

The Tweed Case

New York May 10.—The District Attorney has served notice to counsel for Wm. M. Tweed, that his case would be called for trial on Monday. This is the famous case in which the jury disagreed some time ago. Counsel for Tweed met to-day to consult and prepare for his defense. One reason for the action of the District Attorney is the failure of the Tilton Legislature to extend the time in which cases of the nature of Tweed's become outlawed.

Satisfaction for Insult.

London papers contain particulars of the complete satisfaction given by the Dominican flag for the insult to the British flag in February last, when three political refugees were taken by force out of the Vice Consul's house, at Puerto Plata. Under demand and threat made by the commander of Her Majesty's ship Niobe President Baez ordered the prisoners to be set at liberty and that the Governor refrain the Consular flag and fire a salute of twenty-one guns, all of which was duly done and gives great satisfaction to the foreign residents of the Island.

Funeral of the late Chief Justice

New York, May 10.—The funeral of Chief Justice Chase to day was very imposing in its simplicity and character of assemblage, the latter combining a large concourse of prominent men of all shades of politics and of all professions. Washington, May 10.—Nearly all the Departments are closed and flags all over the city are at half-mast in respect to the memory of Chief Justice Chase. The funeral of Monday is expected to be a very imposing affair.

It is President will make no appointment to fill the vacancy till the meeting of Congress.

The Louisiana Difficulty.

President Grant admitted a few visitors to day. He will attend the funeral on Monday and will leave for New Haven on Monday night, unless news from Louisiana is of such a character as to demand his presence here.

The President was this afternoon asked if Gov Kellogg had made formal application to him to interpose to protect the State from domestic violence. He said he had not done so, and that in the dispatch from Kellogg last night he intimated that the prospect was that the present trouble would soon pass away.

The following dispatch was, sent hence to day by Acting Secretary of War, addressed to Colonel Emery "If the United States Marshal finds it necessary, in the execution of his process, to take possession of boats or other means of transportation, and asks assistance from you, or directs the troops which are already ordered as part of his posse to assist him in such seizure for that purpose, all assistance will be given him in taking and maintaining possession of and using the same."

The Loss of the Polaris.

Washington, May 10.—The sad termination of Captain Hall's Arctic Expedition has caused much sorrow here; both in official and private circles where the ill-fated commander was well known and highly respected.

Havana, May 9.—A Spanish steamer arrived with 400 Carlist prisoners to reinforce the Spanish army.

A boat from the English gunboat received Blewell, the bank forger, and carried him to the English steamer Cornice, which left this evening for London. His wife went on the steamer. In addition to the passport he will turn states' evidence on his arrival in England.

A dispatch from Santiago de Cuba says O'Kelly arrived there yesterday. His trial will be conducted there.

NEVADA.

Mountaineers Organizing for Defense.

Elko, May 10.—The mail carrier brings full particulars of the citizens' meeting at Mountain City, held last evening. At a meeting of all the settlers in the vicinity, the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, In view of the recent Indian outrages at or near the northwest border, and in view of the unprotected condition in case of an outbreak of the savages in our immediate vicinity, that we form ourselves into an organization for mutual self protection.

Resolved, That the organization be known as the Mountain City Home Guard, that D Griffith be elected Captain, to hold his office one year from date, that a memorial be forwarded to the Executive of the State of Nevada, asking His Excellency, Gov. Bradley, to forward the Company the necessary quota of breech loading rifles and ammunition, at the earliest practicable moment.

Resolved, That the Chairman appoint a committee to draft a memorial to the Executive of the State of Nevada.

"The undersigned whose names are hereto appended, respectfully request that you will take into consideration our unprotected condition, our remoteness from any population or neighborhood in the event of an outbreak by the Indians in your vicinity, who are well armed and numerous, and who will undoubtedly be found by the Indians now at war, that we have in our midst forty families dependent on our community for protection; that we have but very few arms of any kind for service when required. And we most respectfully request your Excellency to forward to the Captain of the Company seventy five stand of breech-loading rifles, with their necessary ammunition."

Signed by ninety petitioners.

ARIZONA.

Los Angeles, May 11.—The Arizona Miner (Prescott) of the 3d, says: On Sunday, the 27th inst, more than two hundred Indians left Date Creek reservation. The removal of all the Indians from Date Creek to Verde reservation had been determined on, and many refused to go. Their removal was to commence May 1st, and Jamaspie and his band skedaddled. It is conjectured that they may have gone to the Colorado reservation, where some of them have had residence before. Some of the Red Mountain Apaches and Mohaves say they will fight before they will go to Verde. Some of them are sure to break out from any reservation they may go to sooner or later. An officer from Fort Whipple informs us that the Indians number from 400 to 450 who started quietly on Thursday for the Verde reservation, Lieut. Sedgwicke, with a detachment of twenty five men, escorting the party. Some of Jamaspie's band who returned, are with the party. About one hundred are supposed to be in the mountains, and as Capt. McGregor is in that section with his company, the Indians will be likely to see trouble unless they keep quiet.

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco

San Francisco May 11.—Billy Emerson and several other minstrels of the Athamea Theater who have closed their engagements will go to Australia.

Many people visited the City Gardens to-day, expecting to see Fairview's monster air ship go up; but as it is not finished it will not ascend till next Saturday. The boat is shaped like a scow, 50 feet long, with a diameter 30 feet in diameter. It is calculated to carry eight persons.

The trial of the case of Laura D. Fair against the lessees of Platt's Hall comes on again to-morrow, when the fair Adonis (her agent) will testify in her behalf.

INTERIOR CALIFORNIA DISPATCHES.

Los Angeles, May 10.—San Bernardino organs say grasshopper pests have made their appearance by millions in the vicinity of Wormser & Rauch's land at Cleaning overything.

Salinas City, May 10.—The grand jury, after being in session for six days, adjourned this evening. Five of the six days were occupied in hearing evidence, which, with impossible, to indict those present at the lynching of Tarpey. But as the evidence was conclusive as to any particular person, the bill was ignored.

Pleasanton May 11.—At four o'clock this afternoon, W. Cottinger, farmer of this place, passed through the town on his way to San Jose with his family of nine persons and when a half mile from town, when passing another team, his team took fright, capsizing his wagon and occupants into a ditch some four feet deep. He severely injured in the breast; also his wife and eldest daughter, each having an arm broken. Also rest escaped injury.

Stockton, May 10.—A stable was destroyed by fire about 3 o'clock this morning, and three horses burned. It was the work of an incendiary.

The Grand Jury yesterday found no bill in the case of Durkin and Hall, who have been in confinement for two months for the murder of J. P. Wilson. They were immediately re-arrested on a warrant from Sacramento, on a charge of burglary.

Sacramento, May 11.—One week ago last Saturday it was generally understood here that Frank M. Flynn, brother of Chas. Flynn, alias Mortimer, now under sentence of death for murder and confined in the county jail, had left Lyons, Mexico, for this city, on the overland train from the East. A stranger, answering to the description of the reputed brother, was pointed out to the police, and was closely watched. He was neatly dressed, seemed careless and haggard, and had the air of one in great trouble. Those who had seen Frank, (Big Mortimer,) and Wm. J. Flynn would at once recognize the peculiar resemblance between the stranger and the Flynn brother. An examination of the register at the City Hotel to-day showed the fact that Frank M. Flynn had arrived here yesterday afternoon. Shortly afterwards he presented himself at the county jail, and without any provocation informed the jailor that he was the brother of Chas. Flynn, then in the building, and that he had killed Mose Meyers, and that he did so in self defense. His request was immediately complied with, and he was conducted to the condemned man's cell. Deputy Sheriff Shearer, upon opening the cell door, said "Charley, here is your brother Frank, who has just arrived from Mexico. He wishes to speak with you." Charley did not appear to hear or understand, but continued to rock to and fro, moaning and wriggling with his hands, with a fixed gaze at a pillow upon which he had placed the coat and a bouquet presented him some weeks since. Among the flowers of which it was composed was a photograph of his dead brother, and would the individual from his head on the day he visited the Coroner's office to recognize the man who lost his life the night previous in a vain effort to rescue him from impending doom.

EXCITING NEWS FROM WALLA WALLA.

Five Indians Attack a Man in His House.

By the kindness of the O. S. N. Co., we are permitted to lay before our readers the following dispatch forwarded by the operator at Walla Walla:

Walla Walla, May 11, 5 P. M.—About 9 o'clock this morning, a party of five Indians entered Jeptha Harrison's house, about eight miles from town, near Thomas Page's, and in a threatening manner demanded tobacco and matches. Harrison ordered them out, and announced his closing the door. The Indians attacked the house and broke down the door; three men Harrison managed to knock two down with a hatchet, when a third came to their assistance armed with a pistol. Harrison closed with him and a severe struggle took place for the pistol when the Indian being about to get the best of it, Harrison's daughter picked up the hatchet and struck him twice on the head, which laid him out. Immediately after the alarm was given the neighbors collected and the five Indians were captured. Two succeeded in making their escape on the road to town, but the balance were lodged in jail. Harrison says over seventy Indians are camped in the neighborhood, and he is collecting arms to take home with him.

MONDAY MORNING, MAY 12, 1873.

The Modoc War—The New Situation.

The news is to the effect that the Modocs have left the Lava Beds, apparently with the intention of transferring operations permanently to other sections. One despatch informs us that the Indians are on the way to Goose Lake, and will be speedily overtaken by the pursuing troops who are only a little behind them. This may be so; that is, it may be true that the main band of the Modocs have gone in the direction of Goose Lake; but it is far more likely that, if they have definitely abandoned their stronghold at all, they are scattered in various directions. The appearance of Bogus Charley on the Klamath—if there is any truth in this report—would indicate that Jack's band may have compounded, they have had enough of murdering white people for the present, and dissolved, each individual or family taking care of themselves. From the treatment these Indians received after their cruel murder of a number of white settlers, they might well reason now that all they have to do to avoid any further trouble with the whites is to cease their hostile demonstrations and become "good Indians." And so reasoning they might very naturally separate from each other, take their squaws and children, and declare themselves "tired of fighting"—an old dodge of the Indian and affect to consider the account square.

But it is quite as likely another ambush is preparing, as that the Indians have left the Lava Beds. Some time ago, only a day or two after the massacre of General Canby and Dr. Thomes, it was announced that they had been dislodged, and the Lava Beds were wholly in the possession of the troops. A few days more brought news of an engagement, in which the whites were greatly worsted. Let us hope this sudden giving up of their strong position by the Indians, will not prove a similarly fatal delusion. We shall watch with considerable anxiety, the next dispatches from the seat of war.

Although the report of Bogus Charley's appearance on the Klamath, seems to be pretty well authenticated, we cannot but doubt its correctness. It can hardly be possible that he is permitted to roam the country at will unmolested, with the blood of the Peace Commission fresh upon his garments. The natural impulse of those seeing him, would be to arm themselves as speedily as possible, if not already armed, and proceed to arrest the murderer. Many persons are fond of such notoriety as a man would have at this time who has just met and conversed with one of the principal Modocs engaged in the massacre, and such persons might tell the story of Bogus Charley with no more to be relied upon, than the fact of having met an Indian and his family. Any other Indian would do as well as Bogus Charley.

Unless we greatly mistake, this Modoc war has been about as badly botched since the disastrous termination of the Peace Commission as before. We are aware that it is far less fine work to sit in a quiet office three hundred miles away from the scene of operations and criticise a campaign, than to go into the field and conduct one; and that a very large proportion of all such criticism is ridiculous if not contemptible. But people who have spent twenty years on the Pacific coast, and who have had experience, as well as observation, of Indian warfare during that time, will all agree that nothing can be done toward conquering the Indians by the marching and countermarching, maneuvering for advantage, and all that sort of thing, upon which success in battle with a civilized enemy is supposed to depend. The best Indian fighters never seek to get a regular engagement with the foe. Their fighting is skirmishing and bush-whacking—mostly the latter. Watch Gen. Crook and Capt. Sandford, and see if they have a "square fight" with the Indians. They do no such thing. They fight them Indian fashion. They waylay them, and ambush them. They stalk them one at a time as the hunter stalks the deer. They swoop down upon their rancherias when the inmates are all stupified in slumber. In short they fight Indians as Pacific coast volunteers fight them; and they succeed. A hundred Indians can baffle a thousand soldiers who strictly observe the common rules of military tactics; and one hundred whites, with their superior arms and ready supplies, fighting as the Indians fight, as Crook and Sandford fight, can conquer a thousand Indians.

Pulling Together in Unity.

The Louisville Courier-Journal said of the Democratic State Convention that was to meet at Frankfort on the 1st of May, that if it ever took to construct a platform for the Democracy of Kentucky, it would "overstep its duty and fall on the other side," and that any platform that can be produced will "impede the Legislative campaign this summer, and cause dissatisfaction among some of the elements of the party." This we should judge, is as true of every other State in the Union as of Kentucky. But what must be the status and prospects of a national party, whose elements are so extremely diverse and discordant, that it is impossible to frame a declaration of general principles upon which its members can be induced to stand together? If it is thus impossible to harmonize the party in a single State, how is it to be done throughout the whole nation? It is too apparent to need argument, that the Democracy is no longer able to sustain their present organization, and it is difficult to see how they can hope ever to reconstruct the party out of its old materials. The wisest thing for them to do, would be to let the party slide, bow to the inevitable, accept the situation, and place the welfare of the people above all party questions. However, "this is not our funeral" but theirs, and they have a right to run it as they choose.

Says the N. Y. Times: It need not be inferred from Delano's statements that the Modoc case illustrates any important feature of the so-called "peace" policy of the Government. The Modocs represent an element of very slight relative strength among the Indians. They were roaming from their reservation, and the Government undertook to persuade them to go back, if it could, and failing that, to drive them back. This final resort to force is as much a part of the policy of the Government as is the first resort to persuasion. No one familiar with the complex Indian question will be quick to say that each method is not good in its place. As to when to use one and when the other, that must be left to the several commanding officers.

The State of Kentucky produced in 1872, according to the official report of the State Auditor, 97,207,261 pounds of tobacco, which amount is only a trifle over three-fourths of the product of the previous year.

The Franking Privilege.

The same Congress which voted itself sixteen hundred thousand dollars additional back-pay, and made the Congressman's salary seven thousand five hundred dollars a year, and which treated so rapacious and bribery so tenderly, was so honest and conscientious and economical that it abolished the franking privilege.—Farmer.

A palpable hit. The people of the United States had for some time been asking for the correction of abuses that had grown up under the franking privilege. But these features of it which have been greatly serviceable to the private citizen as well as the congressman, the free exchange of newspapers, and the free circulation of papers within the county where published, were matters of great convenience to community. After July, this comes to an end. The circulation of every newspaper in the immediate neighborhood of its publication, is to be taxed the same as though it went three thousand miles, and every exchange is to be taxed the same as private subscriptions. This will not be so severely felt by the metropolitan journals as by the local papers whose circulation is not so extended. Upon these the new law will bear with peculiar weight.

Now this affectation of virtue with which Congressmen denied themselves a privilege, which they had made odious to the people, by their gross abuses of it, till comports with their great salary steal; especially, when we call to mind that in depriving themselves of the power to send all manner of non-mailable articles to their homes without paying freight upon them, they also took away some valuable conveniences from the people—conveniences to which no objection had ever been made. It was not the freedom of the mails that the people were opposed to, but the abuse of that freedom by high officers of the Government; and it was not the correction of those abuses that Congressmen addressed themselves to, but the abolishment of the freedom itself. It would have been an exceedingly proper service for Congress to render to the country, if they had gone carefully and earnestly about the work of so amending the existing law as to prevent the abuses that had grown up under it, lopping off here and there whatever experience has shown to be unjust, and protecting the really useful features of the law against fraudulent practices. The country would have appreciated such service as this; but we misread the prevailing sentiment if the sweeping abolition of the whole law on account of the abuses under one or two clauses of it, does not meet with a very general disapprobation.

Very numerous and diverse are the views of members of the Forty-Second Congress on the subject of back-pay. Mr. Sunset Cox, through John A. Hardenbergh, a banker of New York and brother-in-law of Cox, writes to the Treasurer that he has always believed that this fund was his to dispose of, or, as he phrases it, he was a "trust without interest, except that general interest which every citizen has in fair legislation and Federal taxation." He authorizes the Treasurer to place the money—$4,812—"where it will do the most good," by cancelling so much of the debt, or otherwise. In concluding, Mr. Hardenbergh remarks, that as Mr. Cox cherishes the good-will of his proper constituents in Ohio and New York, he desires to make his former speeches against the measure emphatic by this disposition of the money.

Ex-Representative Peters, of Maine, has returned his share of the extra back-pay to the Treasury. General Garfield has written a third, and this time a three-column, letter explaining his action on the salary bill, in which he refers to his disposition of a part of the plunder, as follows: "Already, without my knowledge or procurement, a paragraph has found its way to the press which makes it proper for me to say, though I did not desire to have the fact paraded in public, that I not only did not receive the back pay or any part of it, but I ordered it so conveyed to the general Treasury as to be placed beyond the reach of myself or my heirs."

It is stated that the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge have jointly made arrangements with the reverend authors of the Revised Version of the Scriptures to purchase the copyright of their work, and to print and publish the same. All the expenses connected with the publication will be borne by the two Universities in equal shares.

The Oregon Herald, discussing the best means of inducing immigration to this State, makes the following sensible remarks:

Oregon is without a homestead law, and the immigrant finds in this fact an objection to the State. It is complained that Minnesota, Kansas and California are rapidly progressing in population, while Oregon is comparatively at a stand still. Minnesota offers to the settler a homestead exemption of eighty acres of land with dwelling house thereon. Kansas offers one hundred and sixty acres, and California a homestead of the value of $5,000. It is impossible to overestimate the importance that these laws have in the eyes of the settler. Many men have been broken up by the war—many have become so from other causes—all of whom would become desirable citizens here. The necessity for some protection until they can gain a pecuniary footing is imperative. They want a home, that the rapacity of creditors cannot take away, and they will particularly give that State the preference that offers them one.

An exchange has the following concerning the rice famine in Java:

The rice scarcity, which is still prevailing in Java, appears to be most severely felt at Demak, near Samarang. Corpses of men and women, who have died of hunger, are daily found on the roadside; it is no rarity to see personslying along the roads, exhausted and awaiting death. On two occasions has it happened that women have offered children for sale to Europeans. Those women, as well as the children, looked dreadfully thin, and assigned, as a reason for their unnatural actions, the hope that the children, being with Europeans, would not at least die of hunger, which would otherwise be unavoidable. Drouth continues to prevail in several districts of Java. In the Samarang Residency the paddy planting has twice failed in consequence. At Demak, by last advices, some rain had fallen, and the poor people are planting paddy again with renewed hope.

A New York dispatch of the 4th inst. says:

The funeral of Hon. James Brooks took place to-day and Grace Church was filled to overflowing. The front seats were occupied by the pall bearers. The editorial staffs of all the city papers were fully represented, and the entire staff of the Express were present as mourners. Representative Morgan of New York, Governor McCormick of Arizona, Hon. Samuel Randall of Pennsylvania, Hon. J. L. Lassals, S. A. Buxton and J. F. Chauncey were present. The City Government was represented by the President of the Board of Aldermen. The American Press Association was represented by Robert Johnson and Joseph Howard Jr. The Associated Press was represented by J. M. Stone. Delegates from the Typographical Union were present. Among the congregation were many of the most prominent men in the city.

The Republic, in its Departmental record, has this:

In addition to the recent award of $268,000 bounty for the destruction of the enemies' vessels at New Orleans, by Admiral Farragut, Judge Humphreys has awarded $500,000 prize money. This decision will have to be further considered by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia in banc. If then affirmed, the Treasury Department, it is asserted, will appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States.

A Chance for Several Gentlemen to "Explain."

SALEM, May 11, 1873.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

I write you further in relation to the new Democratic Postmaster at Jefferson. I have it from very good authority that the late P. M. at that place, Esquire Johnson, a Republican, resigned at the suggestion (or dictation) of a Democrat of Jefferson, and recommended Mr. Brown, a Democrat, who prides himself on his "party record." A petition was circulated for his (Brown's) appointment, as well as a remonstrance, but finally matters were compromised and both petition and remonstrance were quashed, with the understanding among all parties that postal affairs in that quiet town should remain in statu quo. And I am further informed that the petition praying for the appointment of Mr. Brown, is still in Jefferson, never having been forwarded to the Postal Agent or Postoffice Department for action.

If this is the way in which matters stand, a few inquiries may not be impertinent here. Did Mr. Johnson, a Republican, recommend Mr. Brown, a life long Democrat, to the Postoffice Department for the position of P. M. at Jefferson? Or did the Democrat who dictated Mr. Johnson's resignation, and who is a prominent friend of Mr. Holladay's, write to Mr. Mitchell and dictate that Mr. Brown should receive the appointment? As to Mr. Johnson's course in the matter, a short explanation to his Republican friends in this county, will be in exceedingly good taste. If Senator Mitchell has yielded to the dictates of this "railroad Democrat," who was defeated for office at our last county election principally on account of his railroad "proclivities," an explanation will not be amiss when he returns to our shores. And if Mr. Brown has been appointed by railroad influence (of course he will be controlled by that same influence) after he qualifies as P. M., or will be removed if he refuses to be thus controlled. And this reminds me that perhaps Mr. Brown himself had better "rise and explain." He is a merchant in Jefferson, and most all his patronage comes from the farmers of that vicinity. The railroad, under Mr. Holladay's management, is the greatest enemy the farmers of the Willamet valley have ever had to contend with. If Mr. Brown has been appointed by railroad influence, he virtually belongs to the ring, and I am foolish enough to say that no one can belong to that ring, without placing himself in direct antagonism to the interests of our farmers.

One word more, and I am done with this subject for the present, or until I can get some one to "explain." If Mr. Mitchell or any other man supposes that I am going to work for the success of the Republican party and for his elevation to the position of U. S. Senator, and then stand quietly by and see him recommend Democrats for appointment to office who pride themselves on their Democratic record, in never having, during their lives, voted for a Republican for office, he is showing less mental calibre than I have heretofore given him credit for. Yours truly,

COLEMAN'S EUCALYPTUS

Dr. J. S. Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus is a preparation combining all the valuable medicinal qualities of the Eucalyptus, which is cultivated in nearly every California garden for its medicinal utility, having become the household remedy for all diseases of the KIDNEYS, BLADDER and URINARY CANAL, and SEMINAL WEAKNESS. It seems to have a direct affinity for the GENITO-URINARY ORGANS and their surroundings, and cures them by its alterative, healing and balsamic properties more effectually than any other known remedy.

It is an invaluable remedy for all diseases of the mucous and serous membranes, and is an BRONCHITIS, HACKING COUGH, NAUSEA DURING PREGNANCY, DYSPEPSIA, LEUCORRHŒA, etc.

This preparation is the result of Dr. Coleman's experiments with the medicinal properties of the tree in the U. S. Marine Hospital in San Francisco, in 1871 and 1872, where he had unusual facilities for testing the various methods of preparing the remedy, and its use. It can be relied upon as certain to give the promised result, and hundreds of testimonials of its efficacy can be seen at his office, 635 Kearney street, San Francisco.

COLEMAN'S DOUBLE EXTRACT OF EUCALYPTUS is a powerful, yet harmless, febrifuge, and is a special preparation for the treatment of the malarial influences of our inter or valleys, and is warranted to cure any case of FEVER AND AGUE treated with it according to directions, which is the baneful results of the usual Quinine and arsenical remedies for those diseases are entirely avoided.

To Contractors.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE UNDERsigned, appointed Superintendent by the County Court of Clackamas county, Oregon, will let a contract for the construction of a BRIDGE ACROSS THE CLACKAMAS RIVER, on the road leading from Oregon City to Portland. Such contract will be let to the lowest responsible bidder, at public outcry, at the Court House door, on MONDAY, 2d DAY OF JUNE, A. D. 1873, at the hour of 1 o'clock, P. M.; subject to the right of the County Court of said county to reject such bid, if the same should exceed the sum such Court is willing to appropriate toward the construction thereof.

Said Bridge will be 210 feet long, it built according to Smith Patent Truss, with aprons; or two spans of 140 feet each, with aprons, if built according to the plans of the old Canon bridge, at the same point. Bids will be received according to each plan.

Particular plans and specifications for each proposed style may be seen upon application to me after this date, and the successful bidder may expect to give bonds for the due execution of his contract.

CITY.

TAMMANY DAY.

Among the Improved Order of Red Men, to-day (May 12th—is Tammany's Day, which is as strictly and faithfully observed each year by that Order, as the Odd Fellows celebrate the 26th of April, the anniversary of the introduction of that Order in the United States, or our Irish citizens the 17th of March. According to the Order of the Red Men, Tammany, or St. Tammany, was traditionally and symbolically the founder of the Order, and is therefore its patron Saint. It is not known definitely whether the existence of Tammany was real or mythical; but it is however supposed a great Sachem bearing that title lived at one time, and was regarded by the North American Indian with a deep and superstitious reverence. To him was imputed the power of dispensing good and evil, averting calamities, to shower down blessings, miraculously save life, or visit the direct vengeance on enemies. In fine, this great visible or invisible, real or mythical Sachem, was the good or evil genius of the red men of the forest. The date of the birth of this mild and wary Chief is fixed on the 12th of May. During his natural life (if, indeed, he had one,) Tammany, by reason of the great attributes of power and knowledge imputed to him, held in deservable away over the superstitious minds of his red race, and at his death was placed chief among the Indian gods.

The Improved Order of Red Men having its origin in the manners, customs, habits, observances, etc., of the North American Indians, takes to the character of Tammany, and symbolically adopts him as the patron saint of the Order, as did the aborigines. As the presiding deity of the Order, it appears but natural and proper that the birth of such a great personage should be observed with appropriate ceremonies. For many years the Red Men have celebrated the advent into the world of this traditionary Sachem with picnic excursions, music, orations and various festivities.

In conformity with long established usages, the Red Men of Portland propose to celebrate St. Tammany's Day with the usual exercises to-day, by an excursion to Oregon City.

OBJECT AND ORIGIN OF THE ORDER.

The Improved Order of Red Men is a confraternity for the promulgation of principles of true benevolence and charity, and for the establishment of friendly bonds among men. Its title is, as the name clearly indicates, purely American, dating its history prior to the early days of the Revolution, and having its full birth about the year 1812, among the patriotic soldiers of Fort M'Henry, on the Delaware river. It is the oldest protective and benevolent society of American birth and growth. The secrecy of this Order consists in the idea that secrecy is right and proper in those matters which concern the private interests of a common family.

Its name is chosen, as is above indicated, as expressive in the highest degree of its origin, and is peculiarly appropriate to a society which has a history co-equal with the history of the Indians of the American continent. The Order is within its folds all who are privileged to unite in daily life, and counts among its members the natives of many climes and men speaking many tongues. Its emblems are drawn from nature alone, and are symbolized in every form upon which the eye may rest, and are all of the most beautiful and significant character.

THE EXCURSION TO-DAY.

The picnic given to-day by the Red Men of the city promises to be a pleasurable and successful affair. The elegant steamer Annie Stewart has been chartered expressly for the occasion. The boat will leave the new wharf at the foot of Taylor street, at 8 o'clock A. M. She will stop at Milwaukie and Oregon City for excursionists, and will pass through the locks, landing at a point below Canemah, where the picnic grounds are located. Every arrangement having in view the pleasure and comfort of the excursionists has been made. At the grounds the order of the day will consist of music, oration, dancing and other festivities. Music on the occasion will be furnished by the East Portland Band. Ample accommodations have been provided for dancing, a platform floor, 60x100 feet, having been laid. In the evening the steamer will leave the grounds in order to arrive here at about half past six o'clock.

ARRIVED.—The O. S. S. Co.'s steamship Ajax left from San Francisco for this port last Friday morning. The following passengers came on board: Hon J H Mitchell and family, R Mrs Holmes, H F Cutler, Miss F Meyer, J E Cromwell and family, G A Hoyt, O Warren & family, R J Reeves, J J Tourney, T Towne, E W Robertson and family, Mrs K Mrs N Bell and daughters, R E Mc Mrs Emma Folsom, Sister Blondin, Mrs B and four children, N Hensley and wife, J C W Henry, J. "SUCH A COUNTRY."—A facetiously disposed person facetiously relates the following incident which occured in this city last Saturday: A party just from New York—traveling for his health—deeply impressed with the great progress made by a country so new as Oregon. Anxious to see a person of mature age born here. Is introduced to a young gentleman 21 years old, and tells the fact. New York party inquires: "How very strange to think that you have been born and grown to manhood, in a land which was very recently, I only knew as a green oblong on Olney's map of the United States and city as cold, too! I can scarcely realize it!" New York party, Webfoot, standing by: "I can find you a man thrice as old, born here." New Yorker—"Where is he? I should be delighted to see such a curiosity." Facetious party brings forward John, aged 60. Tableaux.

BASE BALL NOTES.—The Pacific Club beat the East Portlanders on Saturday in East Portland, 30 to 14. The game was exciting. The High School boys won a bat from the Bishop Scott Grammar School boys last last Saturday. The score was 64 to 56. This evening Captain Wiley and committee of four select the balance of the nine, and the members will congregate to hear the result of their deliberations as well as to attend to other matters of importance. Next Saturday the Pacific Club play the Oregon City Club on the former's grounds in this city.

PAID A VISIT.—The little clipper ship, Fleetwing owned by James Troup of Vancouver, hailed over under full sail presenting a very handsome appearance. Although not favoring us with a specimen of her speed, the Fleetwing looks as if she could get over the water as swiftly as any of the sailing crafts owned by parties in this city. A number of yachts were out to receive the rival craft, but so far as we know there was no trial of sailing qualities between any of them.

LARCENY—ASSAULT AND BATTERY.—The following cases are now before Justice Ryan's Court:

State vs Ida May; charged with larceny; plea of not guilty entered. Jury trial demanded, and case set for trial next Tuesday, at 10 A. M.

State vs Ida May; charged with assault and battery on S. A. Dray, Constable. Jury trial demanded, and case set for trial on Tuesday next, at 2 P. M.

MONTHLY MEETING.—The regular monthly meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association will take place this evening, at their rooms. All members and friends of the association are earnestly solicited to be present. A little variety, under the name of a "Social reunion," will be indulged in after the business has been transacted.

E. J. NORTHRUP, President.

READY TO RUN.—After the detention of about two weeks the steamer Onward, which sunk in the Willamette river while on the way from Hillsboro to Oswego Lake has after much labor been raised, and the steamer is again ready for service. The damage and expense were slight, the principal item being the delay caused by the accident.

CHURCHED.—There was no service at the First Presbyterian Church, in consequence of the absence of the pastor, Rev. A. L. Lindsley.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Portland Turn Verein have commenced preparations for their annual festival which is announced to take place on Sunday, May 25th. The programme will be announced next week, and we have no doubt it will be more attractive than heretofore. Germans know how to get up anything of that kind, and that is sufficient guarantee that the forthcoming affair will be a most interesting occasion.

THE CHURCHES.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

The Rev. J. D. Eaton, pastor, officiated yesterday at this church, both morning and evening. His discourse for the morning was on the subject, "Some Helps to Faith," founded on the following passage of Holy Writ:

In which are some things hard to be understood, which they that are unlearned and unstable wrest, . . . unto their own destruction.—II. Peter, iii, 16.

There are always some persons who are satisfied with things as they are and deprecate new movements. They are the fly-wheels and governors which keep the public life running smoothly. For those to have faith is as natural for them as to breathe. Of course they are not very helpful to the unfortunate ones who are perplexed about things which they settled to their satisfaction long ago. They "thank Heaven that they never had any doubts," in a way exasperating to the storm-tossed soul, that is beating about to find a safe harbor.

Young men, middle aged men, are drifting away from the Bible and the church, partly because they are misunderstood and misjudged, partly because they do not have a correct idea of truth. To extend sympathy and help to such is a service which angels might covet. Calling a man names and rising stones at his head never made him a Christian. Some harsh terms have to be used, because we must call things by their right names; but the firing of epithets is cowardly.

No favor is to be shown to the flashy, talkative skepticism that slings the Bible behind it and then looks up pert and satisfied, as much as to say, "How cleverly that was done!" But there is a sincere skepticism which merits kind treatment. It stands like a man bewildered, lost, and cries like a strong swimmer in his agony."

J. Candler some of the ways in which perplexity arises. One way is that of supposing that the truths of revelation are subject to the rules of the "exact sciences." You can demonstrate a problem in mathematics, but not the fact of our Lord's resurrection. The things you handle are measured by the quart, pound or yard. But you do not venture to weigh the motives to act and predict the conduct of a man; nor to measure the righteous indignation of God. The solar spectrum has analyzed the elements of the sun, but it has never tested the spiritual being of an angel. These things belong to the realm of "probable truths;" but a probable truth is not less real, because it rests on a preponderance of evidence, or an intuition, or a sense of propriety. The administration of the law in the courts, matters of taste and criticism in music, poetry and literature—all rest upon such a basis. Yet they are among the most real things with which we have to deal, as are also the distinctions of right and wrong, the attributes of God, the nature and destiny of man.

Unbelief also often springs from a sort of impatience. It finds the lesson hard and petulantly throws the book down. The exclamation, "I cannot and I will not," must give way to "I can and I will." A third cause of trouble is the fact that we have to use distorted faculties. We look upon the world with unsound eyes and see things awry. We are like the compass needle vacillating in an iron ship. Pride warps us one way and avarice pulls us another.

2. Consider two ways to remove perplexity. Take some simple points, which you do believe, and live up to them as well as you know how, like learning a language. You say first, "bread, meat, water, sleep, wake, work." By and by you add abstract ideas and begin to reason.

Again, take time. You cannot lie down in a trance of religious ecstacy and get up again a complete Christian. Belief is a product of growth.

Honest doubts are honorable, but because they are doubts, but because they show search for truth. Grapple earnestly and courageously with these things, as you do with money-getting and place seeking; for a listless life, as of a lazy native in the tropics under his bread-fruit tree, will never solve the difficulty. But do not pay an idolatrous worship to Reason, as the heathen offers his cup of rice and odors of incense to his tinselled god.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

Last evening Rev. A. R. Medbury delivered a discourse at this church. His text was predicated on the words: "What is your life?" James, 4th chapter, 14th verse:

What lesson has God been giving us of late concerning the brevity and uncertainty of life? Surely, death is no respecter of persons. Now, an earthquake sends almost a whole city of people before their final Judge; and now hundreds go down in death on board an ocean steamship. Now a train of cars plunges into the chasm created by a broken bridge, and now another bridge, contracted with criminal carelessness and weighted with men and women, drops its precious burden into the river below, and overshadows the land with the gloom of the calamity. One day a man of lofty character and long and noble life, a servant to his race and nation in the military, is called by treachery from our acquaintance and our midst, and almost the next day another national servant of kindred grandeur is bid away from the judiciary. With these many others pass on to their account—some by the violence of their own hand, some by violence at other hands, some hurried to death by wicked indulgence, some with noble triumph in their dying hours, and some with their last days darkened by most fearful conspiracies of dishonesty. Many have been called in youth, and many who had just begun to live in precious loves and cherished hopes of loving ones. But what shall death teach us if not the importance of life while it lasts? And why should an event so certain and common as death be made often so startling in the manner and time of its coming, unless it be God's monitor to deepen within us the sense of this importance, and to stir up to fresh aspirations after the good and pure and noble, while at the same time we are admonished with new power to shun those courses that degrade, bringing only the wages of sin, which is the deeper second death. Yes, death itself is calculated to magnify the present life, and by it God ever bids us over and over to make the most of this life, and to do this, we must avoid that which destroys life, and press hard after that which exalts it.

By a more literal rendering, the text would read, "What sort is your life?" There is implied the variety as well as the brevity of the human life. And observation shows us many a perilous species of life. These we should shun. Then let us note some of them under the emphasis of this direct question, "What sort is your life?" Is it the idle life? Not in any one particular, but in any wrong particular. We may be idle in matters of infinite importance to us by being too busy in trifles. A sluggish mind is worse than a sluggish body, and a heart sluggish by means of predominant selfishness is worse than either. Many people regard any form of labor as the first fruits of sin—the very curse put upon a ruined race by Divine justice, but idleness is the true curse and labor the blessing, normal, noble, and ennobling. God gave man a commission to labor before man had sinned. All the universe of God condemns idleness and commends labor. All the universe is at work for the glory of God. A dead life is a contradiction of terms, but such is the life of the idler, and a strong contradiction makes the best name for such a monstrosity. The common view of the advantages of the "retired life" is a great mistake, because in so far as a retired life signifies laziness, it signifies wickedness.

If a child is to be brought up in "the nurture and admonition of the Lord," among the first and most important lessons it should learn is the glory of work. The Lord have mercy on any young man or woman who despises labor and seeks to shun it. But I speak not of idleness in respect to the things of this world merely or mainly. This world is the vestibule of eternity, and our daily acts or neglects are vitalized with the life of an eternal influence and being. The Scriptures are full of commands and inducements to labor, and to consecrate all labor, by faith, to Christ. How glorious to work for Jesus. How good the life that is lost in Him. Honest labor ever glorified life, but nowhere else so truly and eternally as when stimulated and wrought by faith in the Son of God. Let us strive, therefore, for the life of labor, Christian labor, and beware of the life of idleness.

Another variety of life to be shunned is the "fast life." In one sense all life is fast—fast in the speed with which it hurries by. But there is another sense in which men call life fast. I refer to this: Paul, writing to Titus, describes it, "We ourselves were sometimes foolish, serving divers lusts and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hateful and hating ourselves." Surely here are all the essential elements of the fast life. And how this style of life abounds, even in Christian lands! Where are not its votaries? where are not its victims? Satan runs his trains in this day on the shortest possible time, and his passengers for a sure perdition are multiplying all around us, especially among the young men of the land. Sudden changes and the destruction of regard for home and parents; disregard for purity of life, and recklessness in respect to personal and public honesty; these and kindred influences, induced by a fearful madness to live fast, are spreading a blight over the land, year by year more dreadful. And what I have said before, in this sanctuary I say again: nothing but the deeper, purer prevalence of the religion of God, our Savior, will check the tides of moral evil and save a people or a soul. The annals of civilization tell us of nation after nation tumbled from the pinnacle of a lofty greatness into a fearful ruin, and almost invariably by means of an increase of a refined corruption and gilded rottenness within. Splendid school houses and churches, and other grand public and beautiful private buildings are being multiplied on every hand throughout our country; this is well. I make no objection because the Cathedral passion of the Middle Ages rolls back upon us like a returning wave. But brick and mortar and chiseled stones, Medæval splendors reproduced, mechanical triumphs, costly apparatus and modern comforts in home and school and church, with preachers and laymen and teachers of highest external culture, and keenest intellectual power—all this cannot produce a generation of men and women if we dare dispense with one of the ancient and holy truths of the Bible by which the mightiest spiritual bone and sinew, the loftiest individual hearts and brains of all ages, have been developed. The Bible, and the Bible only, in its unparalleled plainness, the standard of right in the social and political as well as in the business and strictly religious world, affords our only sufficient safeguard. Here alone does the fast life receive its sufficient reproof and check. If the fast life exist there we would say less when men shout out from their revelry, "let us eat and drink for to-morrow we die." But to speak to that young man: Tell it to that young woman, pale, languid and dissipated. Tell them they will not die. They cannot die. The soul may be driven from the body. They may plunge headlong from the fastness of earth into hell, but that sensitive soul, thus forever married to the effects of its own sins, lives forever. Oh, let us load with men to heed the voice of love which calls to us, "Put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the flesh and the lusts thereof."

Another life to be shunned is The aimless life. This kind may begot the idle life. It is without aim to the barren of good. But a false aim is only a little better than none. And by a false aim I do not mean a low and wicked one. These are worse than none. But I speak of a plan without Christ. A life without Christ is utterly false. Let the first part of this world be a whole be the object of a man's ambition; and let him get it, get it for his own, and yet it this is the one end of life—that is the wreck of a soul, a magnificent but fearful failure. But let any man take Paul's grand motto as his guide, "For me to live is Christ," and "to die becomes gain," for he may now have, not only a concentrating purpose, but a living concentrating principle and power and the Divine one at that by which to shape and guide ever higher all life's course. Many a Christian has too little definiteness of purpose in his earthly life, and this is ever to be regretted. But there can never be an absolute lack of purpose when high over all, the heart is fixed upon "The mark of the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus our Lord." And though the subordinate purpose of such an one may never culminate in his hands, though many a purposeful specialty may perish before him, yet the great major purpose shall succeed,—and in this success of the highest, every other success and every other disappointment shall be made to contribute to an eternal joy. Then when urging upon to have a noble plan and purpose in life, I would urge them most of all to place Jesus first and last, the all and in all of that plan. Let the hope of the Glory of God be the solitary anchor of the mortal life, and the immortal soul; then shall life never become as a wasting day dream or a frittering prodigality, but it shall be a sublime, eternal, success.

ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH.

The Rev. John Rosenberg officiated in this sanctuary yesterday, assisted by Rev. Mr. J. L. Daly.

The text for the morning service was a part of the 10th verse of the 2d chapter of Colossians: "Ye are complete in him." The reverend speaker said the words of the text are contained in an epistle addressed to the members of an eminent church, which was gathered by Epaphras at Colosse. The saints and faithful brethren had embraced, with a lively zeal, the religion of Christ, and had informed themselves, with distinguished exactness, to its institutions and requirements. They had been regularly admitted into the fellowship of Christ's religion, for the apostle observed of them that they were "buried with him in baptism, wherein also they were risen with him, by the faith of the operation of God." They were also "exemplary cherishers of the doctrines sacraments, and discipline of the Church. As might be expected of a people who were thus grounded in their faith and regular in their conduct, they were also exemplary in their lives, and abounding in the Christian graces of faith, hope and charity. To persons of this description were the words of our text addressed; and without doubt to every sincere disciple of the Lord the minister of Christ is authorized to declare: "Ye are complete in him." In what does this completeness consist?

In order that you may understand the purport of this magnificent epistle, it is necessary to know that Epaphras, the founder of the church at Colosse, had gone on a mission to Rome, where St. Paul was imprisoned. He communicated to the apostle the unwelcome news that the faith of the Colossians was in danger of being perverted by false teachings, especially by the Gnostics—a sect of mystic fanatics who laid claim to superior knowledge (whence their name), and who endeavored to engraft some of the Platonic principles upon the system of Christianity. St. Paul, under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, wrote this letter to them, contradicting those doctrinal errors, and especially their knowledge, since the true believer is "perfect" in the knowledge of Christ. Now, knowledge is the foundation of all religion and all excellence. Without it there can be no elevated character in man; no wisdom nor satisfaction in the management of life; no reasonableness in the service of his Creator; no basis to his faith, nor certainty in his hopes; no sunshine of joy upon his soul, no pleasantness nor safety in his path. In this fundamental particular we are "complete" in Christ Jesus, for in Him are hidden the treasures of all wisdom and knowledge. In Him are wrapped up all the counsels and purposes of God. In Him are placed the fountains of all truth. From Him proceed all sure instructions, and until brought to His feet, there is no rest to the inquiries of the soul. He is the sun of the intellectual firmament. Where He appears there is light—we see our path, and order and beauty are discernible in all things around us. Where He shines not there is confusion and darkness, doubts, and difficulties, and uncertainties beset the way, and the soul loses itself in inextricable mazes. For where else than under the instruction of Christ shall we find man "complete" in regard to knowledge? Shall we find him so under the guidance of Nature? Look, then, at the savage: how nearly akin to the brute! And upon the subject of the soul, its salvation, and of religion, how ignorant! Or, shall we find man "complete" under the light of science and refinement? Look at the philosopher, either heathen, or he who living under the Christian dispensation yet with the light of the Gospel shut out from his heart—how restless! how perplexed! how dubious! At the end of his labors, at the height of his attainments, still asking, "What is truth?" So it is that men unenlightened by the pure spirit of the Gospel, and out of the Church of God, have been everywhere enveloped in darkness, and a prey to delusion. Their highest wisdom is expressed in the just adage of Socrates: "This only do I know, that I know nothing." Surely the knowledge of men is a knowledge engendered of pride, or voluability of words, et præterea nihil. On this account it was that St. Paul was anxious to guard the Colossian Christians against being beguiled by the enticing words and flattering opinions of philosophical teachers by whom they were surrounded. Beloved, in Christ Jesus resides the fullness of supreme intelligence. We can have no better, we can have no need of any other instructor. His instructions are full and certain; full, inasmuch as they are adquate to all our necessities, and certain, in that he is the wisdom of God. This is a wisdom which passeth knowledge.

In the meantime, the question may have originated in your minds, how, amid so many varying opinions, among so many jarring shibboleths, are we to know that, the knowledge we receive is the true knowledge of God's will? We answer: few things, perhaps, can better exemplify the tendency of the human heart to evil, than those subterfuges which it devises in order to avoid obedience to the will of a pure and wise God. For what are schisms and heresies but so many efforts to escape from the obligations of an entire submission to the revelations of an infinite Wisdom, under the pretense of a stricter conformity with the doctrine of revelation itself? All the various schisms have alleged the Word of God as a foundation for their errors. That sacred and unchangeable truth has been distorted and perverted in order that the pride of man may be released from the unwelcome necessity of obeying from the heart that form of doctrine which descended from the God of truth, and which ought to be received with child-like humility by every respectable being. Hence many new interpretations. Hence the scriptures themselves are either corrupted or mutilated. Hence it is that the part of God's word is wilfully forgotten, while another is unduly exalted. Hence conclusions are drawn from particular passages of Scripture, which are in direct contradiction to the general spirit of the Word of God. But for all this the declaration stands firm; "Thy Word is Truth." Do you ask, then, how you may secure this knowledge to yourselves? The Church points, with precision and exactness, the way that leads to eternal life. She directs you to the true knowledge of salvation by the remission of sins. Founded, not upon Peter, but upon the Rock of Ages, she stands a monument of God's love in Christ. God is in the midst of her. He will guide her, and through her, us, into all truth and necessary knowledge. Christ is the vine, ye are the branches, and ye must abide in Him. And so, holding the true faith in unity of spirit, in the bond of peace, and in righteousness of life, shall ye be found in Him and complete.

AFTERNOON SERVICE.

The choral service of the afternoon at St. Stephen's is most attractive. Removed from the bustle and din which, even on the holy Sabbath, affect one's ears about the business center of the city, here quiet and peace woo to holy thought and meditation. The service of evening prayer was conducted by Revs. John Rosenberg and J. L. Daly. Upon this occasion, the solemn antiphonal chants, under the direction of Miss Clementina Rodney, the accomplished organist of St. Stephen's, were rendered with marked excellence by the young ladies of St Helen's Hall. It will well repay the strollers along the promenade to spend an evening hour in St. Stephen's to hear the impressive music of this admirable choir, if for no other and higher reason.

PLYMOUTH CHURCH.

The morning sermon, by Rev. T. L. Eliot, at this church, yesterday, was suggested by the season of the year through which we are passing. The recurring miracle of creation is now before our eyes, and he is less than human who in the past few days has had no conscious realization of the message of love which, like a scroll, has unwrapped itself from the leaves and flowers. In this transparent air and tender light, and with this ocean of verdure flowing into every part of our world, spirits should be attached to finer senses than those which belong to mere barter and trade. Rough rocks have crevices into which little colonies of seeds, like the Puritans, plant themselves seemingly against hope. Lonmans discovered a water andromeda flowering in the snows of Lapland; and the roughest, coldest life must have some crevice in which to receive the new born splendor which is spread through the forest and field, bearing witness to God's presence and affection.

Passing by the more common analogies which present themselves to the mind at this season, we trace the present glory of growth back to one of its hidden foundations, and discover a lesson therefrom. Nature is constantly repeating the law of motion and rest. Always preceding and following periods of development, are periods of maturing. During winter a secret chemistry slowly goes on, by which the ailment is prepared and the tissues arranged for the next period of growth. This law is not an accident of climate, but an essential condition of plant life. So recognize in spiritual things the law which asks you to base your life on maturing processes. We Americans hate to mature anything. Forced life is everywhere. An unnatural activity and induration possess the world. It is a crime not to be "getting on," which means a perpetual spring, and sinking off of green unripe fruit. This strain is the source of many evils. In order to keep it up false stimulants are required for body and mind. The spectacle thus presented is wearying and discouraging. Our young people wander mentally and actually like Arabs. They live from the top of their lungs and on the froth of their minds. Hurrying around they call life, and quiet thought fits only poky people. Hence an awful immaturity, and a world crowded with undisciplined and undeveloped manhood and womanhood. There is an utter absence of inward maturing chemistry. We devour everything and assimilate nothing. Plant and tree say to us, "Live, but have a basis for life;" "Grow, but mature as you grow." Let us, then, resist the tendency which invades business and religion, of hurrying everything. It is better to be left behind to day than break one's neck to-morrow. We should feel for the foundations, and like good soldiers never venture beyond the source of supplies. In work and character we had better leave the world a few handfuls of perfect fruit than shower wagon loads of green fruit fit only to fatten swine.

A second lesson is derived from the fact that in the plant we can always trace outward manifestations to inward sources and organic principles. Leaf and flower are results; they manifest life, but are not the life itself. Our thoughts may be carried by analogy to the life of things as distinguished from outward appearance. There is a spirit of the world which judges and works only on surfaces. It measures the universe and God Himself by the five senses, and a base utilitarianism. We have a near sighted civilization, a contracted vision in society, politics and theology. But causes and inward principles are the real life of things. An artist without the knowledge of anatomy, who relates every line to an interior frame, will draw sandbag men, not living ones. We should learn to only trust effects as we feel within them the nerve connecting them with the true principle of life. The world is full of veneered work—tinsel men and institutions. The theory is that to look like something serves all practical purposes. The outside is what we are after in society, business and living. A veneered character is the result. We are varnished over with superficiality in everything. Plants and trees bloom gloriously by virtue of inward reality and life process. So should manhood unfold from within, and not be sought by plastering and varnish. True growth is what we want, and this men never hurry, is never immature nor superficial. Spring time thus teaches us what Jesus so impressively spoke: "He that heareth my words and doeth them is like a man building his house on a rock; the rains fell and the floods came and beat upon that house, and it fell not." No seeming and no mere hurrying take the place of calm, earnest, inwardly-matured Life.

TAYLOR STREET M. E. CHURCH.

The congregations at this church, both morning and evening, were large. In the forenoon the services were conducted by the pastor.

Rev. W. McChesters, of Olympia, preached in the evening on the subject of Repentance, from the text, "I say unto you, nay, but except ye repent ye shall all likewise perish." In his discourse he alluded to the false impression so generally entertained that it was necessary for men to commit some heinous offense to bring them under condemnation; but the scripture showed plainly that all were sinners and needed grace, that but few could ever be placed alongside of the young man to whom Christ said, "Yet lackest thou one thing," etc. There is but one way in which all men can be saved, and that is by repentance, the beggar and the king must travel the same road and enter at the same gate. Some sought to enter that gate by sacrifices, and some by the bestowment of charities, but the porter who keeps watch and ward there cannot be bribed. He further defined the true import of repentance not to be the shedding of tears and the manifestations of sorrow, for these were perhaps only indications, but true repentance was the confession and abandonment of all sinful practices. To perish in the sense of the text he described as the greatest of all calamities; it was to be lost to "all hope of good," to become a wanderer and an outcast from Heaven. As a "golden streets" and "pearly gates" do not fully describe the abode of the blest, neither does the idea of consuming fire and undying worm depict the entire extent of the miseries of the ultimate impenitent. This doctrine the speaker thought might be said by some to have been more popular in the past ages than in the nineteenth century, but the Bible teaches it now as then; and though the heavens should be rolled together as a scroll, and though the earth was to be burned up, it was declared that "not one jot or tittle of that word should fail." He closed with a brief exhortation to all present to repent and become followers of Christ, and possessors of the hope of life eternal.

OBSEQUIES OF CAPT. C. S. MILLS.

The funeral obsequies of the late Captain C. S. Mills took place yesterday morning, under the auspices of the military companies of the city. On Thursday evening the remains were taken from his late residence and placed in Armory Hall. During Friday and Saturday, the body was allowed to lie in state, and was visited by very many of our citizens. The funeral was announced to take place at 10 o'clock, and at 9 o'clock A. M. the several military companies assembled at their respective armories, preparatory to taking up their line of march for the Armory Hall, from which place the funeral was to be held. About half past 9, the Emmet Guard, under Captain Wiley, and the Portland Light Battery, Captain Thomas Mountain, arrived at the Armory. Burial services were then held over the remains, conducted by Rev. T. L. Eliot, of the Unitarian church. At the conclusion of these services, a few appropriate and touching remarks were made by the officiating minister. A little after 10 o'clock, the military companies marched out of the Armory and were arranged in single file along Stark street, fronting north. The Red Men, of which order deceased was a member, arrived on the ground a few minutes later, and marched down two abreast to where the hearse was standing—near the corner of First and Stark streets. The members composing this Order then stood in open order several yards apart, one line facing the other. Along between these lines and in front of the military companies the coffin containing all that was mortal of the late Captain Charles S. Mills, was borne by the pall bearers, and deposited in the hearse. Everything now being in readiness, the procession moved along Stark street toward the ferry in the following order: First, a martial band, consisting of two fifers and three drummers, the fifers playing in slow and mournful strains to the time of heavily muffled drums: second, the Washington Guard, of which company deceased had been the leading officer since its organization, marching to the melancholy air of the band with arms reversed; third, the Emmet Guard, with right arms; fourth, the Portland Light Battery, in full uniform with sabres; fifth, the Red Men to the number of fifty or more, in full regalia; seventh, the hearse, over the top of which was spread the National colors; eighth, the pall bearers, occupying on the part of the company Major Chapman, and Captains Wiley, Mollman and Smith, and four persons belonging to the Red Men in corresponding with the number and representation of both, a large body of citizens, including a family of deceased, in carriages, closed the procession. It was among the largest and most imposing we have seen in the city. Arriving at the Lone Fir Cemetery, the remains were consigned to their last resting place. The solemn, beautiful and impressive burial ceremonies of the Red Men were performed, while the body was being lowered to the grave. At the conclusion of the services, three volleys were fired over the grave by detachments of the Washington Guard, after which the coffin lid cruel earth was thrown in the shut from sight the memory of the dead. The procession then reformed and marched back to the city, and quickly dispersed to their respective armories, and the solemn obsequies of the loved and honored dead were concluded. Ever peaceful be his lonely sleep, and sweet the memory of a life which has departed forever.

PERSONAL NOTES.

Why is chloroform like Mendelssohn? Because it is one of the greatest composers of modern times.

An American farmer, William Schroeder, with his family, has arrived at Rio Grande do Sol, in Brazil, to settle. He belonged to Elysium, Ohio.

A Rhode Island man, who mysteriously disappeared three years ago, and was supposed to have been murdered, has just been discovered superintending a mill in Georgia.

A Rochester woman, married to her second husband, recently said to him: "Oh, how happy poor Charles would be, if he were still alive, to see himself replaced by a man as agreeable as you are!"

Bull Run Russell, after all his fawning, has been black-balled by the Athenæum Club in London, which includes in its membership nearly every distinguished man in England, intellectually speaking.

Creditor—"How often must I climb three pairs of stairs before I get the amount of this little account?" Debtor—"Do you think I am going to rent a place on the first floor to accommodate my creditors?"

A Buffalo girl, pretty and eighteen, has sold over five hundred sewing machines in the last two years. She travels with a horse and wagon, smiling when she leaves a machine and shedding tears if anybody afterward refuses to keep it.

A teacher was illustrating the points of the compass to two pupils. "Now, what is before you?" "The North, sir," said John, who was an intelligent lad. "Now, Tommy," said he to the other, who has just donned a long coat, "what is behind you?" "My coat tail, sir," said Tommy.

They have a jocose Custom House officer in a town not far from the "Hub." A few days since a gentleman returning from Europe asked what the duty on the Parian figure of a young girl in a musing attitude would be. The official looked up a moment, and replied, "Hum! maiden! meditation! fancy! free!"

An arithmetical prodigy is being exhibited in Bombay. He can can calculate the square, cube, fourth, and fifth power of any given numbers; extend the square, cube, fourth, and fifth roots of any given numbers; and also multiply and divide any given sums in the shortest time imaginable, without the assistance of pen and paper.

A Yankee in Paris, who was listening to the boasts of a lot of English and French artists, about the wonderful genius of their respective countrymen, at last "broke out" and said: "Oh, pshaw! You git out! Why, there's Bil Devine, of our village, who kin paint a piece of work so 'zactly like marble, that the minute you throw it into the water, it will sink to the bottom kuh-dug, jes' like a stone."

A young San Francisco man was atrociously fooled on the 1st of April. He had told a young lady, a few days before, that she might buy a $1,500 rug that was displayed in a jeweler's window, and on All Fools' Day the jeweler sent him the bill therefor. The youth took account of stock, found that he only had $1,000 in the world, and said: "Death rather than dishonor!" and was about to buy some prussic acid, when he was reminded of the date.

A Parisian swindler recently managed to obtain the sum of fifty francs from the janitor of the house in which he lived by a very ingenious plan. He wrote a number of postal card messages, addressed to himself, as if coming from different persons, in which frequent references were made to a certain large sum of money which he was shortly to receive. The porter, of course, read all the notes before taking the cards to the tenant's apartments; and so it happened that when the ingenious knave asked the porter one day to lend him fifty francs, he readily consented. He never saw either the swindler or the money after that.

What Becomes of the Public Domain?

[From the Willamette Farmer.]

CHICAGO, April 15, 1873.

It seems that it is the policy of the American Congress to give away the public lands to almost any enterprise that can send to Washington an influential lobby. In relation to grants so frequently made to Agricultural Colleges, the Rural New Yorker says: "The new Agricultural College bill before Congress is not one that we commend. We have got tired of this land grant business. The manner in which the lands appropriated to Agricultural Colleges have been used, is not calculated to stir our sympathies in behalf of further appropriations. If farmers of the country want their sons educated in the sciences adapted to their profession, let them pay, as other people do. We have come to the conclusion, that what is not worth paying for, is not worth having; and what can be got without paying for is not appreciated, and what people are willing to pay for, can always be obtained. Free, no more grants for those colleges, say we." This reasoning seems entirely just. All the land grants hitherto made, have not been appreciated, with one or two exceptions. Some of our public men act as if they supposed that whatever they can get from the Government, either by right or foul means, is the great desideratum in legislation. This principle is seen in the workings of the Credit Mobilier scheme. Under this institution the Pacific Railroad cost the Government $240,000,000, while the actual cost was only $77,000,000, or there was a profit of $163,000,000.

In view of the rapid disappearance of the public domain, under this donation policy of Congressional legislation, the following statistics, furnished from the General Land Office, will be of interest to the agricultural community. From 1850 to 1870 the amounts stand.

Given for [illegible]	12,560,000 acres.
Given to settlers previous to the rebellion
Given to States, swamps, &c.	61,076,922 "
Given to States for Internal Improvements	70,272,787 "
Given to [illegible]	47,876,245 "
Given for Internal Improvements	12,465,054 "
Lands given to States	5,464,685 "
Given to individuals and companies	11,795,567 "
Given to [illegible]	1,420,000 "
Given to wagon roads	3,742,213 "
Given to railroads	182,165,581 "
Total	403,198,954

Add to this about 50,000,000 more granted since 1870, and we see where the land has gone. It is a very important fact to notice that a great amount of this land has been donated as subsidies to railroads. From this we hint the legislation for railroads is apparent.

The whole area of the United States is 1,466,000,000 acres of land and water. The number of acres in improved farms is 117,280,000 the number of acres in farms of any kind is 293,200,000 acres.

The railroad companies have had donated to them twice as many acres as there are of improved farms, and an amount nearly equaling the total number of acres of land in any kind of farms. The total amount granted to railroads cannot fall short of 250,000,000 acres. The annual revenue to these companies from the sale and rent of their lands will be immense, and the influence which they will wield over their tenants and customers will be of no small interest to this nation, either for good or for evil.

The city of Belfast in Ireland, with a population of 150,000, is owned by one man. His annual income from rents alone is over $2,000,000. But this amount sinks into insignificance in comparison with the income which must be derived by the railroad companies from their lands donated to them by the Government.

It seems that this business of giving away the public domain should cease; that what remains should be given as homesteads. Centralization is the policy of railroad companies. At the present time a half dozen men control the great portion of the roads in the United States, and if their power increases in the future as it has in the past, they must ultimately control this Government. REA.

A Washington dispatch of the 20th of April, says:

The Pacific Mail Steamship Company has submitted the question to the Postoffice Department whether pay can be obtained for a trip to be made on the first of June in an English steamer, the loss of the American necessitating such a substitute, though the law requires the service to be performed by American built vessels. The opinion seems to be that the money cannot be paid for such a trip. No official action has yet been taken. The company will, however, make the trip, and rely on Congress for compensation.

Wheat in Liverpool—Average California, 12s 6d@12s 9d; club 12s 1d@12s 3d

The trade of our city during the week now closing has been fair, though not up to the average of other seasons; but business men hardly expect that much can be done to be satisfied with what in fact we may receive, though the month with not a doubt fair showing in our favor. The demand for more circulating medium has been steady with not any great increase, and though in many instances much fixed up for the emergency, we hear of but few cases where absolute embarrassment is feared. The most of our merchants also intent upon reducing stocks rather than increasing the present season, believing that the only safe course. We learn of some interior merchants who were in little anticipation of what seemed an undue restriction on the part of wholesale dealers here to sell to them on the usual time; but this feeling passed by the fact above hinted at, that trade is dull, in some instances, necessary for our merchants to economize their resources as much as possible that they may maintain their usual good character for promptness in meeting their liabilities elsewhere. We do not believe that dealers here have generally as large stocks as ordinarily at this season, but only such as in their judgment will be necessary to supply the demand of the year. This fact, while it confirms the belief of the merchants in the existence of some danger in the condition of financial affairs, will also tend in a great measure to lighten the pressure, as they will not likely have great sums of money invested in goods to carry over at the close of the business of the season, and upon which there is always more or less loss.

Home Produce Market

Under this head business is a little more active with but few changes in prices. Wheat is tending slightly upward, and we learn of sales aggregating about 7,000 bushels at $1 55@1 57½ per cental. The receipts are quite large to-day. Oats are still declining, and but little if any advance over 55c per bushel could now be had. Other products are without important change.

Shipping Intelligence.

The barkentine Jane A Falkinburg is overdue at this port from Honolulu. At last accounts nothing was seen of her off the bar. She brings a cargo of sugar, molasses and tropical fruits. Last week the schooner Oregonian and bark Whistler both sailed from Astoria—the former for San Francisco, the latter for South America.

The American ship Puritan, is overdue here from San Francisco. This vessel comes hither under charter to carry away to Hongkong a cargo of flour.

The schooner H. L. Tiernan crossed the bar bound out on Saturday morning, with a cargo of lumber.

No vessel is lying at Astoria at present but the bark Osmyn which is loading with railroad iron for San Francisco.

The brig Orient is loading with lumber and salmon at several points down the river.

To the Afflicted.

THE ABOVE ESTABLISHMENT HAS BEEN opened for the treatment of all Chronic and Private Diseases, in males as well as females, where all who are suffering from any of those dreadful ailments can find relief.

Young men having recently fallen into the terrible habit of secret self-abuse, resulting in nervous debility, seminal emissions, etc., as well as those who have committed the indiscretion of sexual intercourse with the opposite sex, and afterwards found themselves troubled with a discharge, pain in the back, dimness of sight, weak nerves, loss of confidence, timidness in approaching ladies, a dislike to form new acquaintances, disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained at once by immediately commencing a course of treatment by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this class of diseases, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr G will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN.

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not fail of the sacred rights of matrimony resting upon them nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or refund no charge.

CURE AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicine promptly forwarded, free from observation and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and explicit directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars, coin, in registered letter through the Post Office or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union.

All communications strictly confidential.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus awards to certificates, dupe the unwary some of the self-styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly news, rows of San Francisco and other papers are the tired men and tempted and lazy tools of their trades. Some are three-time, whose makers, newspaper cuttings, intelligence office keepers, etc. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry at will cost you nothing, and may save you much pecuniary loss, for as advertising pills by the dozen or more out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in taking any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, pretended patients' letters, etc. Dr. Gibbon will only point out to those who may call at his office of his ability to do all that he proposes to cure.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco, Post Office Box 1,957.

REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE LETTER. Consultation FREE.

☞ Office hours from 9 A M to 8 P M. Patients will please inform DR. GIBBON that they saw his advertisement in the Daily Oregonian. s16d6p

THE ECLECTIC DISPENSARY AND LYING-IN ROOMS,

Cor. of Washington and Second sts. Entrance on Second.

To the Afflicted.

THE ABOVE ESTABLISHMENT HAS BEEN opened for the treatment of all Chronic and Private Diseases, in males as well as females, where all who are suffering from any of those dreadful ailments can find relief.

Young men having recently fallen into the terrible habit of secret self-abuse, resulting in nervous debility, seminal emissions, etc., as well as those who have committed the indiscretion of sexual intercourse with the opposite sex, and afterwards found themselves troubled with a discharge, pain in the back, dimness of sight, weak nerves, loss of confidence, timidness in approaching ladies, a dislike to form new acquaintances, disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained at once by immediately commencing a course of treatment by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this class of diseases, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr G will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN.

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not fail of the sacred rights of matrimony resting upon them nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or refund no charge.

CURE AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicine promptly forwarded, free from observation and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and explicit directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars, coin, in registered letter through the Post Office or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union.

All communications strictly confidential.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus awards to certificates, dupe the unwary some of the self-styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly news, rows of San Francisco and other papers are the tired men and tempted and lazy tools of their trades. Some are three-time, whose makers, newspaper cuttings, intelligence office keepers, etc. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry at will cost you nothing, and may save you much pecuniary loss, for as advertising pills by the dozen or more out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in taking any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, pretended patients' letters, etc. Dr. Gibbon will only point out to those who may call at his office of his ability to do all that he proposes to cure.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco, Post Office Box 1,957.

REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE LETTER. Consultation FREE.
